

ELECTION QUESTION

“ How would you ensure the average middle income Kiwi family has a real and honest chance to work hard and get ahead in this country while still maintaining quality time with their kids when the only way to earn good money seems to be to work every God-given hour? ”

– Mike and Emily Wilson

John Key: Declined to answer question.

Phil Goff: “I think it’s a fair question ... We will cut the tax from the first dollars that people earn rather than cut the top tax rate range of the last dollars that people earn.” Labour would cut $525 a year from the income tax paid by low-income earners, as well as removing GST from fruit and veges, and “Mondayising” Waitangi Day and Anzac Day to guarantee families get a holiday even when those days fall on the weekend.
